To the Freeholders of GREAT BRITAIN.

Gentlemen,

Your joyful Congratulations upon King George's seasonable Accession to the Crown, express'd in your late Addresses to his Majesty; your dutiful Declaration, how you value those inestimable Blessings of Liberty and Property, which you now begin to enjoy; your Due Resentment, express'd against the late Managers, who had almost depriv'd you of both; your just Commendation of the present wise and honest Ministry; your firm Resolution to venture your Lives and Fortunes for his Majesty, to whom, under God, you are indebted for those dear Enjoyments; your eminent Joy upon the Days of his Majesty's Accession, Arrival and Coronation; all these extraordinary Instances of Loyalty, seem as so many evident Tokens of your good Disposition to send such Gentlemen to represent you in the ensuing Parliament, as will have the tenderest Regard to his Majesty's Honour, and your Rights and Priviledges.

Sirs, If ever there was a Necessity for you to exert your utmost Abilities in Elections, 'tis on this Occasion; for the same Men who these four Years last have been working the Ruin of the Nation, still carry on the same Designs, as fully appears from their late insolent Riots, with which they have mobb'd the Government, and the seditious Sermons and traiterous Libels, with which they have poyson'd the Minds of the Vulgar.
and

Neither need we question that the Faction will spare any Cost to get their Ringleaders chose Members of Parliament, and if we may believe Forreign Advices, their Friends the French Bankers are continually negotiating great Sums, for Bills of Exchange upon London, which 'tis suppos'd are to be made Use of to support the Pretender's Party, and to bribe Votes at Elections for Parliament Men. But now (thanks be to God) the Faction can't do this with the same Ease as they did in the last Election, for then it was sufficient to bribe the Returning Officer, whereas now they must apply directly to your selves; but we hope you will be neither brib'd cajol'd nor menac'd to chuse such Gentlemen as have given publick Instances in former Parliaments of their Disaffection to the Protestant Religion and Succession, or to your Trade and Liberty.

That you may the better distinguish these from your Friends, I have here collected the Names of both in the following Lists. And as for farther Advice, I'm sure you cannot have any from a Greater or Better Hand than King George, who in his Royal Proclamation for calling a new Parliament has given you such wholesome Directions, as (if follow'd) wou'd not fail to make us a Happy and a Glorious People.
